The American expression of regret came after the French filed a formal protest over the incident, which French President Georges Pompidou called "a demarshaling yard and a transshipment point. He called them "significant military targets" The raid was believed to be the first on Hanoi in several weeks.

Mr. Laird said that as a matter of policy he would not identify the kind of bombs dropped on Hanoi, but he went on to say that they were not the so-called smart bombs, which home in on their targets with electronic devices. He said that North Vietnam's SAM-2 missiles had a warnead of about 1,000 pounds and could be confused with American bombs, most of which are 500, 750 or 1,000 pounds. "With the number of SAMs fired and the number of North Vietnamese weapons fired it is difficult to show in a positive and definitive manner whether it was a faulty bomb drop or the impact of weapons fired at the aircraft,"

SAM missiles that miss their target are supposed to detonate before hitting the ground, Mr. Laird noted, but he said they have been known to malfunction.

"It is regretted," Mr. Laird said of the damage to the French mission. "... I cannot state emphatically that this might not have been an error (by an Amer-ican pilot). We do not target nonmilitary sites. We do not target downtown Hanol." Secretary of State William P. Rogers, meanwhile, sent a message to French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann, saying: "Please accept my most sincere personal regrets for the injury that French Delegate-General Susini sustained when damage occurred to the French delegategeneral building in Hanci today."

Similar expressions of regret were made by a State Depart-ment official to a French official here and by Ambassador Watson in Paris.

Struck in Temple

North Vietnamese reports said that Mr. Susini had been struck in the temple by a bomb splinter and had suffered third-degree burns on his head and chest. They said his condition was serious but that his life was not in Hanoi reports also said that a French woman staff member of the delegation "had two legs cut off by the bomb bursts and died on the spot." The Swedish am-bassador in Hanol reported to Stockholm that an Egyptian woman had been killed in the blast. But there was no confirmation in Paris that a non-Vietnamese had died.

Sen. Muskie, without directly mentioning the celebrated "Canuck letter" episode that investigators say was engineered by a White House aide, also called for an independent investigation of what he called "the espionage activities of the President's staff."

The Maine senator, who apparently was victimized by an amazingly complicated chain of events that figured in his "crying speech" two weeks before the New Hampshire primary, said in a prepared statement yesterday:

These press reports [of a vast political spying and sabotage campaign directed by White House and presidential re-election aides surgest a political opposition which is ruthless and unprincipled. These reports of wrongdoing by members of the White House staff are so serious that they require a response by the President himself."

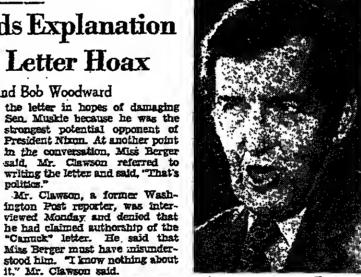

Standing Slipped

Sen. Muskie, whose standing in the New Hampshire polls began to slip immediately after the "crying speech," added: "The President should tell us, if these reports are true, how he proposes to get at the facts of these charges and whether he condones this kind of political espionage operation . What's involved is an alleged corruption of the political process with which every citizen must be concerned." According to federal agents who investigated the Watergate bugging incident, the "Canuck" letter hoar was engineered by a White House aide whose name has not been revealed to The Washington Post by investigative sources.

However, Washington Post reporter Marilyn Berger has reported that Ken W. Clawson, deputy director of White House communications, voluntereed to her in a Sept. 25 conversation, "I wrote the letter"-in which the author said that Sen. Mr. Kissinger, who initially was scheduled to leave for Washington late yesterday, decided to stay over an additional day following yesterday afternoon's session with Le Duc Tho, a member of Hanol's Polithuro, and Xuan Thuy, head of Hanoi's negotiating delegation.

And tonight he canceled a scheduled return flight to Washington, according to a spokesman for security forces at Orly Airport.

that he probably could not leave before tomorrow since the secu-rity force at the airport was withdrawn. It was not known if he planned more meetings with the Communist negotiators. The site of the tarks remained a secret and it was impossible to learn details of their substance. But indications were that Mr. Kissinger's decision to stay over last night was based on progress in the exchanges. New SALT Talks Seen in Geneva In Mid-November

GENEVA, Oct. 11 (NYT).-The second phase of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks between the United States and the Soviet Union will open here around mid-November, qualified sources said

With arrangements having been completed for shifting the SALT negotiations to Geneva as planned, there is no longer any question that the start of the second round might be held in Vienna, the sources said.

Last August, Washington announced that the talks would move permanently to Geneva "because of administrative problems" instead of shuttling between Vienna and Helsinki as during the first phase that culminated in the accord signed by President Nixon in Moscow last

However, the possibility was left open of beginning the second round in Vienna if delegation facilities could not be readied in time in Geneva. The United States has now found the office space it requires for its large delegation. Although arrangements to move into the delegation headquarters will not be completed in time, diplomatic sources said, the SALT talks are to resume here pext month.

Chemical Workers Get 10 Percent Raise

ROME, Oct. 11 (AP),-Unions and management reached agreement today on a new contract for Italy's 300,000 chemical workers. It was a major breakthrough in the government's efforts to bring labor peace to the country's troubled economy.

The agreement came after five months of talk; and a series of strikes. It gave an across-the-board monthly raise of 16,000 lire to each employee, extended annual vacations from three to four weeks, and gave shop stewards powers to inspect working conditions in the plants and negotiate the number of overtime hours with managers. The pay raise amounted to a 10 percent increase for the average wage earner in the chemical industry. Other improve-ments, however, brought labor costs up 30 percent or more. The new contract will expire in 1975. The talks rapidly progressed toward agreement after Labor Minister Dionislo Coppo stepped in as a mediator last weekend.

Stewards Back Accord

A national assembly of shop stewards backed the accord and recommended its approval by the rank and file. Under union procedure, the contract will be signed only after it is approved by workers' assemblies in the plants. This is expected in the next few days.

The agreement brightened the prospects for an easing of tension on other labor fronts. Union representatives for the mecbanical workers and the construction workers hailed the chemical con-when the right moment has come, the facts can be known." One effect of the mounting tension here was to take considerable attention away from Democratic presidential candi-date George McGovern'a Victnam peace plan, announced last night. That President Nixon and Mr. Kissinger might wish to do that was understandable, but the North Vietnamese reasons were less clear. French correspondents wrote from Washington that Sen. McGovern definitely had been unstaged.

Tos state of negotiations can be gauged only from what the Communists have been stressing during the weekly public talks. In recent sessions, their main demands have been about the future government of South Victnam. They have been focusing en the type of provisional government to be set up (they want a tripartite regime), the kind of elections to be held and the nature of the constitution to be drawn up. It is highly likely that these details are the substance of the secret talks. Tomorrow the weekly round of public talks will go on as scheduled.

Empire State's Soaring Ambition Is to Be the Tallest Building Again

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (NYT).—The owners of the 102-story Empire State Building, which has been the colossus of all skylines for almost 40 years but is about to be relagated to the status of the third highest building, are exploring the possibilities of adding 11 stories and making it once again the world's tallest edifice.

According to tentative sketches drawn up by Shreve Lamb and Harmon, the Empire State's original architects, the 16story tower on top of the building would be torn down. The six stories beneath that would be remodeled and encompassed within a new 33-story structure, probably with an exterior of gleaming glass and a restaurant at the top, which would be built on top of the 80th floor.

This would bring the Empire State Building to a height of 113 stories and 1,494 feet—144 feet higher than the two 110-story towers of the World Trade Center in lower Manhattan and 40 feet higher than the 110-story Sears Tower hattan and 40 fee in Chicago, which is scheduled for completion at the end of next year.

"It is physically and financially feasible to do this, but we don't yet have any definitive decision and we have not yet made up our minds," said Peter L. Malkin, one of the partners of the Empire State Building Association, which owns the master lesse on the property. "There are a number of master lesse on the property. The vote of 215 to 167 was a major victory for President Nixon and the House Ways and Means Committee chairman, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D., Ark., over the entire House Democratic leadership and the House Appropriations Committee.

The House then approved the bill to which this rigid spending ceiling was attached a measure raising the public debt ceiling by $15 billion to $465 billion through June 30—and sent it to the Senate. Rep. Mills had agreed to the administration's proposed celling before the Democratic leaders were aware of it. They belatedly tried to defeat what they considered an abdication of Congress's power to control federal spending.

Earlier, shouting obscenities through cellblock windows to more than 200 heavily armed police outside the century-old red brick building, the prisoners had instisted their unconditional freedom demand was not negotiable and expressed their willingness to die if necessary,

"Come and get us," they yelled at one point. "You're going to have to kill every one of us... We don't care. We're ready to die

At one point, the prisoners had held a bloody shirt out of a cellblook window. This came short-ly after moon, following attempts tha prisoners and inmates from the city's reformatory in nearby Lorton, Va., in an effort to quell the uprising.

Mrs. Patricia Gorham, who said her husband wes among the prisoners in the cellblock where the disturbance broke out, said she saw the prisoners bring one hostage "to the window and hit him on the side of the head. He fell to the floor Blood was gushing out the back of his head."

Bonn, Peking Establish Ties; Scheel Cites 'Reality, Reason'

PEKING, Oct. 11 (Reuters).-Foreign Ministers Walter Scheel of West Germany and Chi Pengfel of China today signed a onesentence communiqué agreeing to establish diplomatic relations between their countries and to exchange ambassadors in the

The communique, signed in a five-minute ceremony in Peking's Great Hall of the People, said: The government of the People's Republic of China and the government of the Federal Republic of Germany decided on Oct. 11, 1972 to establish diplomatic relations and to exchange ambassadors within a short time."

Mr. Scheel, at a banquet in his honor tonight, described today's move as answering "the demand of reality and reason."

He called it a natural result of the Bonn government's policies of peace and detente, policies which are designed "to prevent conflicts throughout the world, ease tension and lay the foundations for constructive exchanges between all countries of the world."

Positive Influence

Mr. Chi, who gave tonight's banquet in the Great Hall of the People, said the new relations with Bonn would exert a positive influence for the relaxation of international tension and the safeguarding of world peace.

The communique signed this morning was the briefest of any of the documents signed by about 30 nations which have recognized China diplomatically in the last

The communique was unusual, too, in that it made no reference to China's five principles for peaceful coexistence.

Nor did it state, as many such accords have, that the Peking regime was recognized as the only legitimate government of China. West Germany has not had diplo-matic relations with the Nationalist Chinese regime on Taiwan, and thus did not have to make a statement about Peking's claim to Taiwan or to any other aspect of the Nationalist-Communist Chou En-lai In today's parleys, Mr. Scheel suggested that the two nations look into the question of in-creasing trade, sources in his delegation said. West Germany is China's second largest trading partner, with an annual two-way trade worth about $250 million.

Champagne Teasts

After the signing, the two foreign ministers exchanged copies of the communique—one in German, one in Chinese-bound in blue folders. They shook hands and then toasted each other with Chinese champagne.

All German ties with China were severed in 1937 when Hitler's Third Reich became allied with Japan, which was then at war with the Chinese. East Germany recognized the People's Republic in 1950 but until today the Bonn government had only trade links.

The signing of the recognition communiqué was a formality. A joint announcement in Bonn and Peking on Sept. 29 said that representatives of the two governments had successfully concluded three months of talks about diplomatic tics.

The West German minister and his party will leave Saturday for Hong Kong, where they will spend 24 hours before flying home aboard the West German Air Force Boeing-707 which brought

Tanaka Says He Plans Vigorous Defense, Foreign Policies

By Richard Halloran

TOKYO. Oct. 11 (NYT).-Premier Kakuci Tanaka of Japan eave more evidence today that he intends to lead Japan toward an independent and vigorous defense and foreign policy without interfering with other nations.

Mr. Tanaka, who set the outlines of that policy in his summit meetings with President Nixon and Premier Chou En-lei last month defended his government's plan to double defense spending over the next five years "desirable" for national defense. The premier, who has been in office since July 6, told newsmen that he could not say that there is no threat to Japan-despite the recent relaxation of tension in Asia—and therefore Japan could not have a "zero defense." He also said his government has decided to build new fighter planes in Japan rather than import them from the United States, because pilots being trained in Japanese-built trainers should have the same type of plane to

But the premier pledged that Japan's military forces will be used purely for defense and insisted that they poss no threat to Japan's neighbors. He said that Japan's defense and foreignaid expenditures were heading toward the same level, about 1 percent of the gross national product, which is projected to reach $294 billion by next March.

4 Dissidents Slain In Philippines votes to adopt it. The fourth defense plan since the end of World War II, it calls for the Japanese Ground Self-Defense Force, or army, to acquire 280 new tanks, slightly fewer than under the third plan.

It also provides for 170 armored carriers, again slightly less than the earlier plan. In addition, the army will get 154 combat helicopters, almost double the number acquired in the previous five-year plan. Naval Buildup

Maritime Self-Defense Force, or navy, is scheduled to get 54 new ships, including 13 destroyers, two helicopter carriers and six submarines, all the same numbers as under the previous plan. But six high-speed missile boats and other small craft have been added.

In addition, the navy will get 86 new anti-submarine patrol aircraft, newer but slightly fewer in number than under the earlier

The Air Self-Defense Force is being provided by far the biggest increase in equipment. The plan calls for 211 aircraft, as opposed to only 90 in the last plan. Its share is also the most controversial.

The Ministry of Finance, with an eye on Japan's huge trading surplus with the United States, urged that the new fighter planes purchased in America to stave off pressures for another yen revaluation.

The Defense Agency, backed by many Japanese industrialists, however, contended that Japan should build up its own defense production facilities, acquire the technology needed for building jet aircraft, and reduce its de-pendence on the United States.

McGovern on Vietnam

Sen. George McGovern's address to the Vietnamese reciprocate during that time by nation on the Vietnam war is a strong indictment of a politically bankrupt and morally ruinous policy. The Nixon administration's

The problem of making peace in Vietnam has always been political. The war has been fought to determine the political future of the southern half of the country. Since taking office in 1969, Mr. Nixon has tried to escape that inescapable fact by pursuing two contradictory policies. The pace of Amerlcan military withdrawal has been tied to the success of "Vietnamization," which is a program to strengthen the Thieu government. But the pace of the Paris peace talks hae been tied by the Communists to the willingness of the United States to accept replacement of the Thieu government. This contradiction has produced nearly four years of blood-stained stalemate, which President

Nixon has been unable to break. The commitment to the Thien government has proved an insuperable obstacle to peace. Sen. Mc-Govern would overcome this obstacle by relinquishing any American responsibility

Sen. McGovern was eloquent in his accounting of the terrible costs of a war which has been prolonged for far too long-the lives lost, the hopes blighted, the money squandered, the budget unbalanced and the price level inflated. The ultimate cost is moral. In a sense, the election turns upon the moral capacity of the American people to turn aside from the saving of face and away from misplaced appeals to national honor and to confront at last the true human costs of this war for all participants,

Vietnamese and American. Sen. McGovern's moving statement of the moral issue deserves ing nations, most recently in Iraq's northern fields. In yielding to producer demands the companies were bowing to irresistible twin forces of nationalism and a rapidly growing sellers' market for oil. Free world consumption in the next decade is expected to rise far ahead of production outside of the Middle East, which still contains two-thirds of the world's known petroleum reserves. Kor example, three new discoveries last year in Saudi Arabia alone exceed the total finds so

These trends have particularly serious implications for the United States, which accounts for one-third of all world consumption. Although this country currently imports only 23 percent of its total requirements, most of it from areas outside the Middle East, oil imports are expected to rise to 40 to 60 percent of consumption by 1980. This would mean increased dependence on Middle East sources, higher prices for gasoline, home heating fuel and industrial power and an enormous new drain on the United States

Friendly accommodation with the producer states is a prudent step toward meeting this new situation. But it is no substitute for the most vigorous efforts to develop acceptable alternate fuel sources and to conserve the diminishing resources this country now possesses. The squeeze on oil has only begun.

WASHINGTON.—Intense popu- the minority population is so small

WASHINGTON—The main objection to George McGovern's detailed Vietnam peace plan is that it is too specific and too one-sided. Presimably, he put it forward in the hope of gaining support among the anti-war voters in this country, but he went so far in meeting Hanoi's war aims that he may actually have lost more support by his TV speech than he gained.

For he offered not only to get out of Vietnam, Leos and Cam-bodia in 90 days and out of Thailand after our prisoners of war are home and our missing are accounted for, but he committed himself to withdraw "all salvageable American military equipment" and "terminate any shipments of military supplies that continue the war."

This is far more than a promise to withdraw all Americans from Indochina within 90 days. It is a threat to withdraw future military aid to Salgon while leaving the Soviet Union and China free to continue sending military arms to Hand and the Viet Cong.

Stop the Bombing

Moreover, Sen. McGovern asserts that he would "immediately" stop the bombing and all acts of force upon taking office, but he merely assumes that this would end the hostilities and "expects" Hanoi will then turn over the prisoners and account for the missing. He does not, however, make this a condition of a general cease-fire.

There is, of course, a critical question here. For example, it may vary well be true that Hand will not consider releasing the American prisoners unless Washington agrees not only to stop

For if he stopped all arms shipments and removed "all salvagcable American military equip-ment"—which could mean all planes that fly, tanks that run and guns that fire-he would, in effect, not only abandon the Thien regime, but cripple its for surrender.

Even Gen. Thieu has come up capacity to carry on the war by

Fair Enough

This is fair enough, but Nixon won't take him up on it, and McGovern won't give him the means to do it. As long as Thien has the American Air Force and Navy at his back, and isn't given fair warning that they will be withdrawn by a date certain, be's not likely to compromise. But if McGovern takes away not only the Air Force and the Navy but all salvageable military equipment as well. Thieu won't be able

In American prisoners' eyes the Mexican penal system is a nightmare of alien ambiguities. Arrest, sentencing, trial, appeal, access to honest lawyers, U.S. consular protection are all remote and cloudy concepts once the door ciangs shut and the ritual of prisou life begins.

"The day is past when you can call the embassy and have the consul get you out of jail," said one U.S. official. "Once an American is arrested he becomes subject to Mexican law and the Mexican legal and judicial system. The United States can provide only limited services."

The one thing that is unamblyuous and universally recognized in the world of the Mexican prison is the system of mordida-"the little bite," the bribe, "If you have money, you can make it," said one prisoner, "If you don't, you rot."

Ingalis was told that he could win his release by the payment of a $2,500 fine. But he doesn't have the money and his parents have been sending as much as they could spare.

Asperity

Barbara Smith who was formerly the American vice-consul responsible for keeping an eye on the Americans in Hermosillo jail, spoke with some asperity of the legal assistance provided the prisoners. "The consulate provides the prisoners with a list of local lawyers," she said. "Any lawyer who wants to can be put on the list, but I'd like to see that list cleared up. Some of these lawyers, I am very well aware, are in it for the money only. They could not care less what happens to the prisoners. Many of them pay $2,000 to $3,000. And this :s not a bribe for getting off; it is money for doing almost nothing. "And they keep the prisoners in tow with promises. Lest year we had about 100 Americans here and you can imagine what good business that was. One of the lawyers even charged $5,000 in one e-and unfortunately he got Hermosillo jail, built shortly after the turn of the century,

Hungary won its match against Holland by 2.5-1.5 and is now only half a point behind tha Russians in the leading Group A. At the head of Group B, England leads Israel by half a point, but their adjourned games against the Philippines will be harder to win than the adjourned Israeli games against Norway. England meets Israel in the final 15th round tomorrow. Australia seems likely to wir Group C, where it leads Finland by two and a half points, with some 14th-round games to be completed tomorrow.

In Group D, France leads Singapore by a point and a half.

Two Letter-Bombs To U.S. Zionists Fail to Explode

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (UPI).-Two booby-trapped letters were received and opened by two women active in Zionist affairs here, according to a post office spokesman. Neither woman was injured, the official said.

A third bomb was intercepted in Malaysia, police said. Both bombs found in New York bore Malaysian postmarks. Mrs. Hannah Rosenberg, a leader of Hadassall, the women's Zionist organization in America, received one bomb last Friday. It had been malled Sept. 30 in Penang, Malaysia. Police said that Mrs. Rosenberg opened the letter-sized air mail envelope, but the bomb did not explode. Mrs. Rose Halprin, also a Zionist activist, received her letter and opened it yesterday.

Postal inspector Terence Loftus said the letter-bombs were similar to those mailed to Israeli officials here last month from Amsterdam. Bombs addressed to Israell officials were found in a half-dozen post offices or Israeli installations in Europe. Canada, South America and New York last month. An Israeli attaché in London was killed when he opened one of the letters.

But the head and the haod remain always."

Requirements

Mr. Coudurier, supple and spry, claims that the essential requirements for satisfactory fencing are technique and intelligence. A man can make his point by sizing up the weakness of his adversary. Paul Gallico refers to the sport as his physical chess.

Fencing was the aristocratic workout from the 17th to the eod of the 19th century. Wheo Ifr. Condurier's Inther opened his Saile d'Armes at 6 Rue Git-le-Coeur (still its address), there were 40 public academies in Paris. Although Mr. Condurier's is the

The European nobility developed the art of swordsmanship in single combat only towards the middle of the 16th century, when armor fell into disuse. The ear-liest adepts were plebians who for generations had cultivated skill with hand weapons, on foot and without armor. The gentry took their first lessons from a somewhat despised group of ruffians and desperadoes. Henry VIII, a lover of all sports, gave the fencing master social status by allowing the best of them to form a Corporation of Masters of

Although the Germans are credited with pioneering the rougher games of swordsmanship, the Italians developed the nimble and cootrolled cunning that has come to be associated with the term fencing. Modern escrime, however, was the contribution of the French. Under Louis EIV, a short court sword replaced the overlong, wide-hilted rapier. Since Louis's influence determined the fashion all over Europe, the only sword fit for a gentleman's side was the small Versailles model.

The French feoring masters went everywhere, teaching the new art of foil play. It was neat, quiet, and precise and perfectly suited to a mode of perruques style was decorous but deadly. A Ball for Debs, Dealers, Royalty, Etc.

By Hebe Dorsey

PARIS, Oct. 11 (IHT).-Too many cooks spoil the broth. This was evident last night at the Grand Palais in Parls where government officials, antiques dealers, the Parisian social set, spiked with European royalty, gathered to welcome 103 débutantes ioto the social fold.

Everyone was supposed to he helping everyone else. The result: chaos and a mad crush. The occasioo was the 13th annual Bal des Débutantes, a private event. The occasion was also the annual Soirée des Nations, a chamber of commerce-sponsored fete designed to glamorize Paris. The occasion was also the Soirée des Antiquaires—the antiques show is currently at the Grand Palais. It was a little like trying to mix oil and water.

Of the 103 débutantes, six were from foreign countries. They stood in a roped-off corner of the drafty Grand Palais, squatting more than curtseying as they were presented—the runway was too short. All wore long white gloves and white flowers in their pair. But many were obviously bored and wore purple or red dresses instead of the traditional white. Led by Jacques Chazot, for whom this is getting to be a personal spectecular (he has introduced 2,000 dehs so far), the girls looked as unhappy as prize ponies in a ring.

Everybody wanted to get into sult was some genteel shoving and pushing. The dehs made their bows to Nicole de Haotecloque, president of the Conseil

DANCE

Three New Productions For Britain's Ballet Ramber

By Oleg Kerensky

LONDON, Oct. 11 (IHT).—Hallet rassed by his lack of a shirt, Rumbert has achieved some- generally afraid of the oth thing of a scoop by being the first British company to commission a ballet from Ler Lubovitch, a young American choreographer who has already worked in France, the Natherlands, Portugal and Israel as well as his native country.

It is not Rambert's fault that his new work, "Considering the Lilies," is less original and effective than his reputation led us to expect. Nevertheless, it has ments of striking beauty and is preferable, in my view, to the works by Lubovitch's fellow-American Glen Tetley, which occupy such a central place in Rambert's repertoire.

First, "Considering the Lilies" has the advantage of music by Bach: various cello solos played in the 1936 recording by Pahlo Casals and coliminating with the famous Air on a G String. Lubovitch's use of the music, especially at the beginning, seems a little arbitrary. The ballet starts ominously in silence but within a short while the dancers, in bright mauve tights, are restlessly twisting, jumping, crouching and jerk-ing to gavottes and a gigue. They even keep on shaking in the silence between numbers. The music suggests something much more chaste and tranquil, but the dencers' movements are somehow fitted to it most of the time and the movements themselves are intricate, interesting and athletically performed. Then the dancers all leave the stage to be replaced by a single girl in white, moving gently to the beginning of the great air. Clever lighting makes her seem radiant and gradually she is joined, one by one, by the other dancers who have all changed into white.

The final grouping has them all gently fluttering their arms in apparent rapture at the beauty of the music and of the world. take it the ballet's message is that we should stop fussing over our trivial daily routines and find with débutantes time for "considering the lilies." The message of "Totems," by the Australian dancer Graham Jones, is much more obscure, There is no need for a ballet to have a mesning at all, but this over-ambitious first work for the company seems loaded with all the fashionable message and meanings of our time.

Similarly, the score by Michael Gibbs, described as a jazz composer, is an eclectic muddle of symphonic jazz, Latin American tunes, and atmospheric sound effects, with some suggestions of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring." The ballet is indeed about some sort of rite: Meo in drab brown trousers and shirts crawl around the floor between three phallic totem poles and then are joined by a newcomer who seems embar-generally afraid of the oth I lost track of the exact of of proceedings soon after i cepted, the meo were joine girls and the totem poles i thing like maypoles, with a tof guide-ropes stretching out. like all over the stage. Fit the poles crashed down, ki everyone except the novice.

"Totems" started with a section in silence during the scenery moved about a spotlight blinded the audien was raised from the star the flies. Silence and gi light are two of the worst di of modern dance and the mainder of the work sugg that Graham Jones has no evolved a style of his own:

We were reminded altern of various other works in Rambert repertoire, of the doo Cootemporary Dance pany, of the Joffrey Ballers: Clowns" and of the work of Nikolais, to say oothing of va versions of "Rite of Spring." might not have mattered if tems" had contained any inte ing dancing: but there was so ly any danciog at all.

This senson's third new "Listen to the Music" by Jona Taylor, is a welcome antide the gloom ood despondency a "modern" choreographers see think essential. Like Jones, lor is one of Rambert's day but he has already shown "Tis Goodly Sport," a refree sense of irreverent humor.

Barre Calls for EEC Gold Freeze

DJ).-Common Market Monetary Commissioner Raymond Berre said today that the gold holdings of EEC central banks should be frozen and not required for settlement of debts incurred under the EEC's make in the tunnel exchange margins system.

Mr. Barre also minimized, before a meeting of the European Parliament here, the effect on EEC cohesion of the continued floating of the British pound. He indicated that he, at least, wouldn't press Britain to fix a new exchange rate before it joins the EEC on Jan. 1.

Main Point

Mr. Barre said the essential point, while waiting for Britain to overcome its difficulties, was that the six founding nations of the EEC should safeguard their existing solidarity in all fields. Since it is unlikely that Britain will overcome all its difficul-ties by year's end. Mr. Barre's phrasing indicated acceptance that the pound would float into 1973. It is not known whether his views are shared by EEC governments. A Frenchman, Mr. Barre is expected to leave the commission at the end of this

He noted that Italy, too, has an exemption from EEC rules for settling borrowings under the snake-in-the-tunnel accord (to which Denmark yesterday an-nounced its re-entry). The ac-

The Price Commission hinted yesterday that requests for price increases from automobile manufacturers may be rejected-or cut back-by disallowing some costs

In the series of questions to American and Chrysler, the Price Commission touched on the following areas: How did the companies account for the extra cost of their recalls? How much will the new plant safety rules cost the companies in 1973 and did the companies offset the cost with any anticipated reduction in premiums for workmen's compensation insurance? How much cost savings do the companies changes" of the 1973 cars?

Bell Develops Laser Film Recorder

Bell Telephone Leboratories announces a new method, using a laser, for recording pictures or printed matter on film 60 times faster than current methods. Bell, a subsidiary of American Telephone & Telegraph, says the fast picture technique can trace out a complete newspaper page onto a piece of special film in four seconds. The special film does not require any development or further processing. The new method is strictly experimental and involves only the reception and recording of pictures at an extremely rapid rate.

Japan Sets TV Export Cartel

The Japan Machinery Exporters Association says it will put into effect an export price cartel to regulate monochrome television and tape recorder exports to nine European countries, except West Germany, beginning Oct, 20. Officials say the cartel, which sets minimum export prices rather than imposing quantitative controls, is expected to remain in effect until Dec. 21. The cartel originally was set to be enforced starting Aug. 1, in accordance with a Japanese government request, for 13 European countries. But an inquiry from West Germany's cartel office in connection with its anti-monopoly law prevented the asso-ciation from effecting the cartel as scheduled. The nine countries covered are Denmark, Finland, Ireland, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland, Britain and Italy. For Italy, only tape recorder exports are to be placed under the cartel, officials

Siemens Buys Interatom Shares

Deutsche Babcock und Wilcox reports Siemens has bought Babcock's 25 percent stake in Inter-atom (International Atomreaktorbau), which is now a fully-owned Siemens subsidiary. Interatom, capitalized at 17.5 million deutsche marks, will probably become part of Kraftwerk Union, Siemenc's 50-50 joint venture with AEG-Telefunken, a Siemens spokesman says. Babcock adds it will now be able to concentrate more on making components for atomic reactors. Kraftwerk Union is mainly concerned with planning complete installations.

Polish Firm Joins Japan Company

Agrepol Ltd., a Japanese trading firm, says that Acros, a Polish government-owned trading company, will obtain a 50 percent interest when the Japanese firm increases its capital this month to 15 million yen from 7.5 million yen. It will be the first capital participation by the Polish government in a Japanese firm, Officials say the move is designed to promote Japan's imports of agricultural produce and foodstuffs from Poland. Agropol was established in 1971 to import Polish products, mainly agricultural produce, under a sales agent contract with Agros.

National Can Expects Profit Upturn

National Can expects to report improved sales and earnings for the third quarter and nine months, Frank W. Considine, president, reports. He says sales for the third quarter rose about 6 percent from the $131.6 million reported a year earlier, while earnings were estimated to be slightly above the year-ago $6 million, or 76 cents a share. Nine-months sales rose about 10 percent from the $332.8 million a year ago.

Matsushita to List Shares in Europe

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., of Japan, is preparing to list its shares on European stock exchanges, except the London exchange. Officials say Matsushita expects listings at Amsterdam and Frankfurt next April at the earliest, and on the Paris Stock Exchange by the end of 1973.

Rise in U.S. Interest Rates Not a Concern, Aide Says

DALLAS. Oct. 11 (WP) .- The deputy secretary of the Treasury said yesterday that rising short-term interest rates are a natural product of an improving economy and said the administration is not concerned about them.

Charls Walker told a press conference at the American Bankers Association meeting here that he did not mean to imply that the administration was giving bankers a "green light, yellow light or any kind of light" to raise interest rates. "I hope this industry would keep the interest structure just as low as it can be," he said.

[Today, Herbert Stein, President Nixon's chief economic adviser, said the administration is "concerned about the pos-sibility that interest rates might rise beyond the requirements of current market conditions and tend to check the healthy nomic expansion that is under way," Reuters reported, Mr. Stein said he was clarifying remarks he made on Monday about interest rates. He said that he had been quoted as saying "the White House isn't worrying about the recent rise in interest rates. In fact, I did not say we are not worrying-it's the White House's business to worry."] The so-called prime rate—the rate which banks charge their best customers for a loan—has risen to 5.75 percent recently and many bankers feel a 6 percent prime rate is

Mr. Walker said, however, that he is concerned that longterm rates are too high. "I think they should came down and they might well come down," he said.

Investors Are Worried About Interest Rates

By Vartanig G. Vartan NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (NYT).-Glamour issues led New York Stock Exchange prices lower today as Wall Street waited in vain for an announcement of progress in the Vietnam peace negotietions at Paris.

It was a market that turned its attention instead to the domestic negatives. including conjecture over a possible credit squeeze in

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.42 to 946.42 without any semblance of a rally. Big losers on the active list were headed by Horizon Corp., the volume leader, down 6 to 13 7.8. International Business Machines, making a rare appearance on the active roster, dropped 3 1 4 to 390 3 4 efter selling as low as 384. Control Data sank 4 7/8 to 65 1.2. Horizon, which traded carlier this year at a high of 44 1.4. was depressed sharply by com-pany indications that sales for current quarter might run

15 to 20 percent below year-earlier levels and that quarterly profits may be "more significantly affected." As a result, Horizon saw its share price sliced by 30 percent in a matter of hours. It became the latest of what Wall Streeters "air-pocket stocks," issues that plummet on adversa news. In recent weeks, sudden drops have occurred in Honeywell, American Air Filter, ARA Services and Curtiss-Wright among others. The action of IBM exerted something of a drag upon the glamour sector. It is the most popular of all institutional stocks and its shares carry a greater market value than any other listed issue. EG&G fell 1 1/8 to 16 3/4

despite the company's report that nine-month net income rose to 42 cents a share from 35 cents a share a year earlier. Rite Aid gained 3/8 to 40 1.'S.

The company said it has a five-year goal of 1,000 stores, cach with $1 million in annual sales. Crowell Collier was one of the most heavily-traded issues, closing at :11 3/8 off 1/8. Turnover included a block of 303,000 shares at 11 1/2

A.H. Robins climbed 2 1/8 to 62. The company attributed the rise to a report that a panel of U. S. government consultants reacted favorably to a company

Other point-sized losers included Walt Disney, off 3 7/6 to 167 1/4, Polaroid, 3 to 108 1/8, Xerox, 2 1/2 to 155. Upjohn, 1 to 122 1/4, Owens-Corning, 1 1/2 to 46, and Winnebago Industries, 1 3/8 to 25 1/6.

Prices retreated in light trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex index fell 0.07 to 25.95, while declines led advances, 533 to 396. Turnover was 2.47 million shares, down from 3.55 million yesterday.

ositive Result or New GATT Negotiations Scen

GENEVA, Oct. 11 (AP-DJ) .-There are good chances the an-nual session of the General Agree-ment on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) will authorize establishment of a preparatory committee for a new round of international negotiations next year, GATT sources said today.

The optimistic outlook on the session to be held in Geneva. Nov. 1-14 is based on the fact that all preparations have gone smoothly.

The conciliatory tone observed at the meeting of the Interna-tional Monetary Fund last month in Washington is regarded as another good cmen, the sources said. However, with elections scheduled to be held in several member countries, especially the United States and Canada, and with the Common Market being enlarged, major GATT sgreement on tariff cuts and the removal of other trade barriers in the next few months would be a surprise, the sources added.

Oxy, El Paso May Buy Soviet Liquefied Gas

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11 (Reiters). — Occidental Petroleum Corp. and El Paso Natural Gas Co. said today they have agreed to "jointly explore possibilities" of purchasing large quantities of liquefied natural gas from the Soviet Union for importation into the United States and other markets.

The two companies said they will jointly negotiate with the Soviets for this purpose.

both hands South overtook his king with dummy's ace

South's skill in dummy-play is demonstrated by the dia-gramed deal, on which he survived some bad breaks. He opened one no-trump as South with an 18-point maximum, and naturally continued to game when North used Stayman and then bid two no-trump.

A diamond was led, and South captured the queen with the ace.
He laid down the club ace, intending to develop that suit, but changed his mind quickly when the king appeared from West. The club suit had now to be re-served for the end-game.

The next lead was a low dis-mond, a subtle play aimed at cutting the defenders communications, and when West won with the nine he shifted promptly to a low heart. South decided that West would not he so ready to lead a heart if he held the king, so he played low from dummy and won the ten with the ace. He returned the heart five, allowing West to win with the eight, and ducked again in dummy when West led back the heart jack

The repeated ducks paid a dividend when. East produced the heart king, leaving dummy's queen as a winner. East could not play a club without giving South a trick, so he returned the spade ten.

MY PRISON

By the Duchess of Medina Sidonia. Harper and Row. 169pp. $6.95

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

THE Duchess of Medina Sidenia holds one of the oldest titles in Spain, and judging from the unretouched photograph on the wrapper of her book, she is young and beautiful as well in young and beautiful as well in what one can only call an aristocratic fashion. In 1969 she was sentenced to a year in Jaff and a fine of 10,000 peacets (about $145 lben). Her farine was leading the people of Palomares in a march on the U.S. Embassy in Madrid. They were protesting that after two U.S. planes had collided over the Palomares recollided over the Palomares region and accidentally dropped four gion and accidentally dropped four armed hydrogen bombs, the people of the region could neither form nor fish for fear of contamination. They contemded that they had been given only token compensation for having their livelihoods taken away, and though she was not of the area. the duchess agreed to lead them in the march.

Her progressive views were well known. She had given all but 100 seres of her family lands to local inhahitants for cooperative farming, and she had a reputation for speaking dis-paragingly of her fellow aris-tocrats. When she was divorced, some persons supposed that her political activities had cost her the custody of her three chil-

The duchess may not have realized that she was risking a prison sentence in leading the protest march. As she points out, the noblity in Spain is generally exempt from prosecu-tion in such cases. In allying herself with "the people," however, she lost her claim to exemption and after long litigation was sentenced to a Madrid prison Even then, she could have secured a pardon simply by "repenting" her behavior, but her conscience. she says, would not allow this. After eight months she was re-leased, having shortened her sen-

After her release she wrote a series of highly enphemized articles for a Madrid magazine, describing her experiences in prison, and the magazine was later suspended, ostensibly for having number a picture of a girl in a bathing suit. escape across the border, after which she wrote an uncansored version of her criticles to make up the text of "My Prison."

There is something slightly off-key in that title. The 'My sounds both proprietary and selfdramatizing, and the duchess's book confirms this impression. The warden of her prison may have been almost as much a martyr during her stay there as she was, for she bombarded him with petitions, demands for interviews, legal and social threats and her well-developed faculty for disdain. If what she says is true, he was not a very good warden, but neither was he untypical.

"the people's" rights does not seem to extend to their persons. At the beginning of "My Prison," she "shudders" at the idea of sleeping in a dormitory with other women and on another page she refers to the "ordeal of direct contact with common criminals. The coffee is unbearable, the bean soup inecible, the guards cruel enough on occasion to turn off the TV set before 11:30 p.m. One of the muss who helps ad-minister the prison is incapable of "laughing property": her mirth is both unmodulated and un-

It is a curiosity of the Soanish penal code that political prison-ers are treated better than the non-political. They are given more liberties, easier jobs, more privacy, various exemptions—all this from a government prohihitive enough to arrest protest marchers. lately? Calvin Hill threw a page 36 yards to Ron Sellers, the wide receiver who went on to score as Dallas edged Pittshurgh, 18-13. O.J. Simpson completed two of three passes in Buffalo's 38-14 rout of New England and Leroy Kelly's wobbly pass missed for losing Cleveland.

Enter Dowling

The trend may be for running backs like the above trio to fake a sweep, bringing up the corner back quickly, and then throw a pass as a means of attacking the zone defense. "Sellers faked a block and went deep," said Hill, a quarterback here at prep school. "He was so far open I was scared-I'd overthrow him." There is nothing new about the halfback pass but it has been only an occasional weapon. Neither Hill nor Kelly had tried

Brian Dowling, Hill's teemmate at Yale, got into his first progame as a quarterback replacement for Jim Plunkett and engineered a scoring drive for New England. Dowling scored the touchdown too. Another Ivy Leaguer, Ed Marinaro, saw his first extended action for the Vikings and caught two key passes in a touchdown drive. Acupuncture therapy apparently worked for Roman Gabriel who passed for 225 yards as the Los Angeles Rams crushed the San Francisco 49ers, 31-7. Bob Thomas, the rockie running back, teamed with Willie Ellison to gain 177 yards.

Matters are so desperate with the Colts that they had 39-yearold John Unites running a quarterback draw play. "I haven't done that since Norm Van Brocklin was coaching the Vikings," said Unites who was squashed by San Diego's Lional Aldridge on the play.

Marriage and the GNP

WASHINGTON—For the first time, it has been conclusively proven that the United States loses 34 million man-hours of work each week due to fights between husbands and wives.

Professor Heinrich Applebaum, of the Institute for Advanced Ma-Development, has just completed a study on marriage dis-putes and their effect on the gross national product. "My study, " told me, "indicates that production is affected even more by domestic fights than alcoholism." "How can that be?"

"For some reasoo, which we still have not been able to determine, the Americao wife prefers to start all fights with her husband at hedtime. These fights, which last on the average of two or three hours, prevent the man from getting any sleep. The next day he is compictory escience at his job. came ing accidents, grave errors in bookkeeping and making horrible decisions in a groggy state

"That's serious," I admitted. "We suspected it all along." Applebaum said. "But now we have the data to back it up. This is a case history of typical American couple in Detroit whom we followed through from dinner-time one evening to lunch the next day:

"Saxby came home at 6 p.m., had a dry martini, watched the evening news and then shared a delicious dinner with his wife and three children. After dinner he took a bath, read the evening paper and watched the Dean Martin show. The wife did the dishes, called her mother, took her bath and read a chapter of 'The Godfather'.

"At exactly eleven-thirty the Saxbys turned off the light.

"Mr. Saxby said, 'Good night, dear. I have an early meeting tomorrow with some subcontractors to discuss a very important

"Pive minutes later Mrs. Sarby asked, 'Why don't you ever talk

"Saxby, who was just dozing off, responded, huh?

"You never talk to me symore. You have an awful lot to say to your friends, but yon don't have anything to say

"I talk to you,' Saxby said, getting a good grip on his pillow. 'We talk all the time.' "'But you never say anything, You don't talk to your children either. As far as we're concerned, you're just a boarder

"Saxby rolled over on his stomach. 'You're right. I should talk more to all of you. Good night, dear.

"That's typical of you,' Mrs. Saxby said, lighting a cigarette. 'You think you can just end a discussion by saying I'm right. It doesn't wash any more. You won't even talk to me now.'

"T'd love to talk to you,' Saxby said, but it's midnight and I have this meeting with the subcontractors tomorrow.'

"Of secret. Your work is so much more important than your home life. Why don't you just move into the office and forget about us?'

"Saxby started punching the llow. Look, I tell you what, why don't I come home early from work tomorrow and we'll discuss it then?

"'I want to discuss it now. Tomorrow it might oot bother

The case history said the Saxbys stayed awake until three o'clock in the morning discussing not only why Saxby didn't talk to his wife, but also an old girlfriend that Saxby had before he was married, a questionable joke Saxby had told at a dinner party the previous week, a poker game Saxby had gone to a year ago, and the fact that he had missed his 17-year-old daughter's hirthday party when

The next morning, according to the case history, Saxby was so sleepy he made a mistake on the subcontracting job, and three months later the Ford Company had to recall one mil-

Matthew Andrews has not quite decided whether he is a shopkeeper who writes or a writer who keeps a shop, though he is inclined toward the latter view.

Life of a Literary Shopkeeper

PARIS (IRT).—One of the hazards of the writer's trade in Paris no less than elsewhere, is entertaining thirsty friends. The pitfalls multiply if, carried away by epicurean fancies, they insist on cooking dinner for you. Matthew Andrews, meditating aloud on this and other matters in a case the morning after a had case of food poisoning had landed him in a hospital, agreed that tainted shrimp could happen to anybody. But that it should happen to the proprietor of a health-food chop is an oddity he had not yet worked into the existential fabric.

Andrews, for that matter, has not quite decided whether he is a shopkeeper who writes or a writer who keeps a shop, though he inclines toward the latter view. His time is divided almost equally between literature and commerce. Writing is very important to him, but so is commerce Coming to the shop after writing all day and selling a dozen eggs is a great experience," he said.

What he meant, he explained, has some thing to do with the soiltary nature of writing. He gets along easily with people and he finds it stimulating to come into daily touch with them across a counter. These are not, of course, ordinary eggs. Aux Abelles d'Or, the shop he runs with his French fiancée, Marie-Christine Loiseau, is in an alley-like street, the Rue Royer-Collard, which runs at an angle off the Rue St.-Jacques on the Left Bank, The shop, which they bought about a year ago, specializes in honey, but it also deals in health foods. A hole in the wall, like the other shops on the little street. Aux Abeilies d'Or is crammed with organically grown fruits and vegetables in addition to tons of honey.

The shop, Andrews says, is "close to breaking even." Up to now it has been subsidized by the income from his writing. Early this year he published a first novel. The Black Palace" (Delacorte). He also published this year a book called ."The Parents' Guide to Drugs" (Doubleday). The novel got "good reviews" but hasn't sold well; the drugs book-basically a reference work telling parents where to go for belp if it becomes necessary is selling up a storm: five printings of the hardback edition, and a paperback that has just come

Andrews wrote, in both cases, from experience: the novel is based on five months he spent in a Mexico City jail awaiting trial on a marijuana-possession charge the was acquitted). As the inside flap of "The Parents" Guide to Drugs" makes clear, the author is a former addict. "I tried everything when I was in jail," he said, "but experimentally, rather than from any pressures or compulsion."

It becomes clear in conversation with Andrews that he found being in fall in Mexico a liberating experience. He talks about it almost with nostalgia. The jail is the one in which Trotsky's assassin was imprisoned, and Andrews occupied the hard-case section—the one reserved for drug-charge defendants and accused murderers, all awaiting trial. Although not quite a health resort, the jail apparently operates on progressive lines-there was no discipline, except what the prisouers themselves provided." The only American inmate, he was treated by his bemused house guest." He would get up around 6, he said, and start the day with a Turkish bath." This and other smenties were available to anyone who could pay for them. "I had no money," he said with a remi niscent grin, but I had credit. The Mexi-cans had never heard of an American without money, so my credit was very Cleared finally by the court, he was escorted to the Mexico City Airport by his costs and with firm courtesy, put on a plane for New York. There, for a while, he was on methadrine, to which he was introduced by a doctor friend. When he came off it he got "a small advance" from a publisher and began to write a novel based on the Mexican sojourn.

Andrews 38, was born in Los Angeles and taken to London, where he lived until he was 5. When his parents marriage broke up he was taken back to the United States. He grew up in Brooklyn, did some writing for television without success, later wrote screenplays (mainly for unproduced films) in New York and TV scripts in London, the scenario for a musical-comedy film in
